Applying Tags:

- Officially identify all animals in accordance with Animal Disease Traceability Rule and state of destination animal health requirements;
- Maintain each animal's identity before comingling and until an official eartag is applied to ensure the official identification can be correlated to the consignor of the animal;
- Apply official eartags ONLY to animals not already officially identified; and
- Do not remove official identification devices unless authorized by an animal health official.

Tag Application & Record Keeping: The record must include, at a minimum:

- The date the official identification eartags were applied;
- The official identification numbers of the tags applied and associated with the owner or person responsible for the animals;
- The name, physical address, city, state and zip code of the consignor of animals tagged.

Recordkeeping: Maintain records of official identification eartags received and applied for a minimum of five years. Also maintain an accurate inventory of tags and records.

Security: Ensure the security of official eartags, application records and inventory. Limit accessibility to only tag applicator personnel. Immediately report any lost or stolen tags to Colorado animal health officials.

Ordering Tags:

- 840 tags are available from approved manufacturers and distributors.
- Silver metal National Uniform Eartagging System (NUES) tags or "brite" tags can be ordered from CDA's Rocky Mountain Regional Animal Health Laboratory (RMRAHL) by an accredited veterinarian or producer.
